

ITI World Symposium 2007 - sold out

The response to this year's ITI World Symposium has been overwhelming and we regret to announce that online and on-site registration are no longer possible as the Symposium is completely sold out.

The ITI is gratified at such a positive response, but they have reached the absolute limit set by stringent fire and safety regulations.

The ITI has, however, set up a waiting list so that should any places come free due to cancellations, they can be assigned on a first come, first served basis.

Please register for the waiting list by sending an email to iti2007@interplan.de.